

KRAUT COOKOUT

HP #6

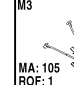

★ AMERICANS Set Up First	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
☒ GERMANS Move First

Elements of the 914th Grenadier Regiment, 352nd Volksgrenadier Division enter along the south edge on turn one and/or set up in hexes numbered ≤ 5 on Board 38 (see SR #3):

	 8-3-8	 4-4-7	 4-3-6	 2-2-8	 9-2	 8-0	 6+1	 1-4-9	 HMG FP: 7 Rng: 16 ROF: 3	 LMG FP: 3 Rng: 8 ROF: 1	 PSK FP: 12 Rng: 4	 GrW 34 MA: 81* Rng: 2-60 ROF: 3 SA: s8, #11	 MTF
	9	4	2						2			2

{SAN: 3}
{ELR: 3}

Elements of Battery A, 107th Field Artillery Battalion and Battery C, 108th Field Artillery Battalion set up on Board 3:

	 2-2-7	 8-0	 M1 MA: 155 M#: 3 SA: s7, WP8	 M3 MA: 105 ROF: 1 M#: 10 SA: H7, s7, WP8
	3		ART	ART
			2

Scratch Force from F Company, 2nd Battalion, 109th Infantry Regiment and 707th Tank Battalion enter along the north edge on turn three:

 1 6-6-6	 2 5-4-6	 3 3-4-7	 8-1	 8-0	 1-4-9	 MMG FP: 4 Rng: 10 ROF: 2	 MAA3(75)W MP: 15 MA: 75 MG: 2/4/4 ROF: 1
3	2						2

{SAN: 3}
{ELR: 3}

MAPLAYOUT:

(Only hexrows R-GG are playable)

VARIATIONS:

- ☒ The Germans win if they eliminate/capture ≥ 2 ART.
- ★ The Germans must exit ≥ 12 VP to win.

SPECIAL RULES:

- EC are Wet with no Wind at Start. All grain hexes are brush. Ground Snow (E3.712) is in effect.
- Germans 4-4-7 squads/HS are equipped with Winter Camouflage (E3.712).
- At least 6 German squads/equivalents must enter along the south edge of Board 38 on turn one.
- The American 8-0 that sets up on board may utilize HIP if stacked in the same Location as a 2-2-7 crew.

Near ETTTELBRÜCK, LUXEMBOURG, 17 December 1944: The 28th 'Keystone' Infantry Division found itself locked in mortal combat with the 352nd Volksgrenadier Division during the early portion of the Wacht am Rhein offensive. The Germans suffered greivous casualties, some 150 dead and wounded, during the initial attack into the sector of the 109th Infantry Regiment. One American unit that felt the brunt of the enemy onslaught was the field kitchen of F Company, rolled over by the German attack. The cooks of D Company, as well as their equipment, were also wiped out, by artillery fire. The regimental commander, Lieutenant Colonel James Rudder, then ordered all remaining field kitchens to evacuate Ettelbrück immediately. The remaining cooks were moved out of harm's way by the S-4 (supply) officer without further mishap. This successful retrograde movement would have a positive effect soon enough. Word from division came down the line that the Germans had overrun the left flank, forcing their way into the rear. The gun positions of Battery A of the 107th Field Artillery Battalion, and Battery C of the 108th Field Artillery Battalion, found themselves peppered by enemy small-arms fire. In the absence of escorting infantry, the cannoneers had no choice but to go toe-to-toe with the Germans. Fight they did, firing high explosive into enemy ranks at close range. Help would soon be at hand. Lieutenant Colonel Rosborough, commander of the 107th FA Battalion, acted decisively, gathering a scratch-force of two tanks and a handful of infantrymen. The rescuers moved through thick enemy fire to reach the gun batteries and save the crews from certain death. For this action, Rosborough received the Distinguished Service Cross. And due to Rudder's choice to re-deploy the regiment's cooks, the cannoneers were able to set up new defensive positions farther back within a short time after being rescued in positions complete with hot food.

